Galateia Laskaraki
Editor in Chief, Marie Claire Greece

Galateia is an experienced editor and media events creator, with expertise in fashion, beauty and lifestyle content. She holds a B.A. in Theatre Studies from the University of Athens and an M.A. in International Journalism from the University of Cardiff. Starting her career in the newsroom of the biggest national newspaper in Greece (“To Vima”) doing shifts in the international and cultural department, she was soon distinguished for her aspiring writing and was assigned for longer reads in the Sunday edition’s supplements. She has worked in the Greek National Radio network and in numerous publications as a writer and deputy editor, including Glamour, Lucky and Marie Claire Greece, where she became Editor in Chief in 2015. Under her editorialship Marie Claire Greece has seen readership, digital and advertising growth, expanding its brand message across multiple platforms and events, including the massively successful Marie Claire Power Trip conference about gender equality and women leadership.
